What is beyond the earth? What is outside the galaxy? These are the questions human beings are curious about and endeavor to explore with their imagination. Named after the short story collection Le Cosmicomiche by the Italian novelist, Italo Calvino, this exhibition displays the works related to the universe and civilization collected in Artbank. The three topics "About Distance and Space," "About Evolution and Destruction," and "About Power and Circulation," the exhibition attempts to make a comparison between the contemporary art creation and literary works to present the artists and literary artists' shared imagination for the external world.

"Le Cosmicomiche" collects twelve unbelievable short stories. In each story, the scientific facts serve as the introduction, describing the origin and development of the universe. There is something in the world which can only be perceived through literature and art. It is also true with the creation of contemporary art. We don't need to understand the symbols and metaphors in the words. Instead, what we only need to do is feel. Let us build the ladder together and leave the planet.
